

Today you will know that the Lord will come, and he will save us...

Exodus:16:6

This year has been like no other and our celebration of Christmas is different as well. We pray the enforced simplicity we are experiencing is bringing us into a deeper experience of Christmas' true meaning. These past months have been one of waiting, desiring, longing. We know we need God's saving power like never before. Jesus' coming among us as one of us, offers us hope. The first Christmas could not have been simpler but Mary, Joseph, Zechariah, Elizabeth, the shepherds, magi welcomed him as a helpless infant into our midst. May our celebration this year draw us into this mystery and help us to recognize him in our own hearts and welcome him in all the way he comes to us.

We thank you and appreciate the sacrifices you make to support our life of prayer. May Jesus born anew with every prayer and good work, bless you and your loved ones with peace at Christmas and throughout the New Year.

With our love and prayers,
